

Articles of Association for a Workers' Co-operative Company Limited by Guarantee

These articles are for a Workers' Co-operative registering as a Company Limited by Guarantee. They are for a workers' co-operative which is:

- Fully mutual – only those employed by the co-op may be members, so the co-op is owned exclusively by the workers.
- Using consensus decision making or voting – choices are available to choose consensus decision making or voting. If voting is chosen it is on the basis of one member one vote.
- In common ownership – if the co-op is dissolved any assets left over may not be distributed to the members, but must be passed on to a similar organisation. This makes the articles suitable for a non-profit co-op.
- Collectively managed – all members are normally directors, but this can be easily changed to an elected board of directors by deleting article 17(2).

These articles are also:

- Suitable for full membership of Radical Routes (only if you choose the common ownership option). Only fully mutual co-operatives in common ownership are eligible for full membership of Radical Routes.
- On the 'Approved Model List' of both the Co-operative Enterprise Hub and Co-operatives UK. This means that both bodies will register your co-op with these Articles.

These articles are provided without any representations or warranties, express or implied. Please check they are suitable for your needs and amend and adapt them as required.

How to use these articles

At the very least you should deal with everything in this section. We strongly recommend that at least one member or your co-op also reads through the explanations of each article so that someone in your co-op understands your articles!

Objects

Insert your objects (i.e. aims, purpose) in 2(1)(a). Although it's not legally necessary for you to have objects we think it's a good idea to have them since they will provide a framework for your activities and provide a guide for future members. Additionally, many funders will expect you to have objects. See the notes below for more information.

Consensus or Voting?

In articles 1,7, 10 and 32 you have choices between using consensus decision making and voting. If your co-op is to use consensus use option A in each case. If you intend to vote use option B. If you use consensus then make sure to define your process in your secondary rules. If you will use voting then decide on what majorities are required and change these in 10(1) and 32(3).

Collective Management or Board of Directors?

Article 17(2) provides for all members of the co-op to be directors. If you'd prefer to elect a board of directors (i.e. not all members are on the management committee) then simply delete part 2 of Article 17. Although other articles refer to directors and the board of directors, they are written so that they work regardless of whether you have collective management or elected directors.

"Secondary Rules" (bye-laws)

In addition to these articles it is essential that you draw up "secondary rules" or bye-laws which deal with some of the details that these articles leave out (secondary rules can be easily changed by the co-op whereas any change in the articles requires a signed resolution to be posted to Companies House). The secondary rules must include at least the following:

- Details of your understanding and procedures of consensus (if you are using that way of making decisions)(10(3) and 32(3)). (You can get information on this from www.seedsforchange.org.uk);
- Quoracy for directors' (13(2)) and general meetings (28(2));
- The minimum number of hours an employee must work per month in order to be eligible for membership (22(b)).

- Any other general rules that the co-op might make for itself.

We've included sample Secondary Rules which cover the above points. You may wish to consider including details of the following as well:

- Principles of your co-op – statements of the purpose of your co-op and thoughts on how you wish to run it.
- Structure of your co-op – what committees, working groups or other sub-groupings your co-op usually has.
- Criteria for working for the co-op – minimum standards that employees should have, or aspire to in order to be a worker (and therefore be eligible for membership of the co-op).
- General guidelines on the probation period for new members.
- General working conditions, standard holiday allowance, working hours, allocation of work, e.g. whether all or most tasks will be rotated or kept within specific sub-groups etc.

Registering your co-operative using these articles

It's easy to register your co-op as a company – full instructions are available in How to Set Up A Workers' Co-op handbook (download for free at www.seedsforchange.org.uk or order a copy from www.radicalroutes.org.uk).

If you'd prefer someone else to deal with the paperwork there are many Co-operative Development Bodies that will do it for you, including the Co-operative Enterprise Hub (www.co-operative.coop/enterprisehub) and Co-operatives UK (www.uk.coop). Both will register using these articles if you wish (these articles are on Co-operatives UK's Approved Model List).

If you register your co-op using these articles with Companies House then you should make sure that you tick box A8 on the registration form to indicate that some articles are entrenched.

If you wish to use the word co-op or co-operative in your name then you should tick box A2 – Company names' restrictions.

Explanations of the articles

Not every article is explained in this section – we’ve just dealt with the ones that are a little more complex or not so easy to understand.

- 1 These articles use a loose description of consensus in the definitions, and a clearer definition of your co-op’s understanding and procedures should be included in the secondary rules. Although unanimity is not the same as consensus we use it in these articles because the interpretation of ‘unanimous’ in case law is looser than 100% unqualified agreement allowing abstentions (‘stand asides’) and qualified support (‘reservations’).
- 2(1) The objects help to define what your co-op will do. In (a) you should list your specific objects, e.g. “To recycle and make available affordable bikes for the benefit of the local community”.

You can have as many objects as you want, and it’s a good idea to put all the things you are planning to do in here so that you don’t have to update your articles later on.

Don’t be too specific about your intentions, but do be clear because in future you may look back at this bit to see what the original intentions of the co-op were.

(b) to (d) are standard co-op clauses to ensure that your co-op follows the co-operative principles and values (which are in Annexe A).

(e) and (f) allow the co-op to do things not explicitly mentioned in your objects so long as they support them.
- 2(2) This part ensures that the co-op’s money is only spent on the objects or to run the business.
- 2(3) “Entrenching” the article is a way of ensuring that it doesn’t get changed without (in this case) all members agreeing.

This is a way of protecting important parts of your constitution from future change. It doesn’t make it impossible to make changes, but makes sure that the changes only happen with the consent of all members at that time.
- 3 This article is a standard co-operative clause, and limits profits to being used for the good of the co-op, its members or similar organisations.
- 4 This puts the co-op in ‘common ownership’ – if it is wound up, anything left over is redistributed among other co-ops or good causes.

This can be changed so that in the case of the co-op being wound up anything left over is distributed among members and recent members. If your co-op does this it will no longer be defined as ‘non-profit’ or ‘not for profit’, potentially making it more difficult to get grants.
- 5 This makes your co-op a limited company, which means that if it is wound up members would normally only have to contribute £1 for any outstanding debts.
- 6 This gives the directors the power to run the company. See below for options on whether all or only some members are directors.
- 7 Even though the directors are responsible for running the co-op, members can tell the directors to do, or not do something. Choose whether your co-op will use consensus or a vote to make the decision of whether to tell the directors to do (or not do) something.

Obviously this is only useful if not all members of your co-op are also directors, but is worth keeping in just in case at some point not all members are directors (e.g. by a change in the articles or because a member can’t be a director because they are too young or bankrupt).
- 8 This allows directors to delegate some of their authority, and explains who they can delegate to.
- 9 Although the directors are the only ones with the power to run the company, they may pass on these powers to others (whether individuals or committees) to take on tasks.

- 10 Choose one of the options to specify whether directors use consensus or vote in their meetings.
- 10(2) This allows directors to make decisions, even if they are not meeting in the same place at the same time so long as the decision is written down and signed by the directors.
- 10(1) Option B – voting: In a meeting a simple majority is enough to make a decision. If you prefer, you may choose a majority of, for example 75%. If directors are not all in one place at a meeting then decisions may still be made (e.g. by email) but must be unanimous according to 10(3).
- 11 This explains how directors’ meetings are called. If a director doesn’t feel the need to be told about meetings, they can just say this is the case (up to a week after the meeting took place) without it affecting whether the meeting is valid.
- 12 This explains that directors can be in a meeting, even if they’re not all in the same place. For this to happen they need to be able to communicate with each other, and agree that they are in a meeting.
- 13 A directors’ meeting can only go ahead if it is quorate. If not enough directors are there they can only propose another meeting.
- Your co-op should state in their secondary rules how many directors are needed to have an official meeting that is allowed to make decisions (a quorum).
- If there are less than two directors, then the only decision that can be made is to call a general meeting in order to appoint more directors.
- 14 The directors may choose any member to facilitate at their meetings. If someone is due to facilitate, but does not turn up within ten minutes of the start time the directors may choose another facilitator.
- 15 This is a standard clause for companies to provide guidance on what to do when a director has a conflict of interest.
- Normally the director in question should not take part in the decision in which the conflict of interest arises, but if the directors decide that it’s OK, or the conflict of interest is ‘permitted’, as defined in (4), then the director who has the conflict of interest is allowed to take part in the relevant decision.
- (4) Lists the exceptions: guarantees from or to a director, subscribing for securities or providing benefits to directors or members past or present.
- 16 The co-op (through a decision at a general meeting) or the directors may make any rules for the co-op.
- 17 Directors are appointed by general meeting, and only members may be directors.
- 17(2) This article requires all members to be directors – so all members share the duties and responsibilities of the co-op. Because not everyone can be a director, for example if disqualified from holding a directorship (e.g. after bankruptcy), this article leaves the final decision to a general meeting to decide that person can continue to be a member of the co-operative even if they can’t be a director.
- If your co-op is to be managed by a board of directors then delete 17(2).
- 18 This outlines how somebody stops being a director – most usually because they are no longer a member of the co-op or because the general meeting has decided to end their directorship.
- 19 This just says that directors can be paid for work they do for the co-op. (As directors they are also ‘office holders’ and not just employees, so they won’t necessarily have a normal employment contract for their work as directors – this article means they can still be paid for the official duties they do).
- 20 Directors can claim reasonable expenses for meetings – this doesn’t mean that this has to happen, nor that normal members can’t also be paid.
- 21(3) Directors need to prepare accounts in accordance with the law. All members may inspect the accounts, thus contributing to transparency and accountability within the co-op.

It is important to consider how to protect individuals' personal data (e.g. benefits payments) that might be in the accounts. The person responsible for the accounts should check whether any confidential data is included in the accounts and act accordingly.

- 22 Because this is a Workers' Co-op only people working for the co-op can be members of the co-op. If you work for the co-op you don't have to be a member since this would be against the co-operative principle of voluntary membership. On the other hand if you don't work for the co-op you can't be a member. The exceptions are during probation period and for those working less than a certain number of hours per month (the exact number of hours should be decided and put into your secondary rules). Workers falling into either (or both) of these categories may not be members. The criteria of a minimum number of hours work per month is a traditional way of defining which workers are eligible for membership of a workers' co-op. You could set the minimum number of hour worked per month as low as 1, although 16, 24 or 32 hours per week are common.
- 23 Members are expected to actively participate in the running of the co-op.
- 24 Membership can be ended by a decision at a general meeting. Although minimum standards for ending membership are stated here you should consider that ending membership means ending employment too – so any termination of membership should be done fairly so that there is no unfair dismissal. (c) says that the procedure is “subject to any disciplinary procedure” which means that if you have a disciplinary procedure (and you should!) then that takes precedence over what is written here.
- 25 There's no longer a requirement for small companies to hold Annual General Meetings, so we've put this article in so that if not everyone is a director you should have at least four general meetings a year. This is to make sure that the co-op remains democratic (you can change this to have more or less general meetings). If all members are directors then you don't need to hold four general meetings (presumably you'll be meeting more often than that anyway). This article gives a lot of powers of oversight to members if they decide at the general meeting to review the directors' activities and require them to report on both the business and ethical indicators.
- 26 General meetings may be called by the directors, or 10% of membership may call a meeting. The proportion of members required to call a meeting can't be changed as it is part of the Companies Act 2006.
- 27 Only co-op members may take part in decisions. They can do this even if they are not all in the same place (e.g. participating by phone).
- 28 This defines the number of members required to allow a meeting to go ahead (and make decisions). You can decide a higher number and put it in your secondary rules.
- 29 General meetings must choose a facilitator.
- 30 The general meeting can decide to allow a non-member to attend and speak.
- 31 If after half an hour there still aren't enough members present the meeting must be adjourned. Other ways of adjourning a meeting are also listed here.
- 32 Choose one of the options to specify whether the general meeting should use consensus or vote.
- 32(3) Option B – voting: change this number if you wish to have a higher or lower requirement. This must be at least 50%.
- 33 This article means that voting can be demanded by members, which obviously is in conflict with any desire to use consensus. The right to demand a poll (i.e. a counted vote) is in the 2006 Companies Act s.321 so you can't decide not to have it, but you can at least require a 100% vote.

If you chose the consensus option above then a 100% vote is required in any poll. (You can change this in 32(4)).

If you've chosen the voting options then the size of the majority needed at a poll is the same needed for other decisions, as set out in (32(3)).

- 34 The Companies Act 2006 requires companies to accept proxies. This and the next article explains how this works.
- 35(1) This means that even if you have appointed a proxy you are still allowed to attend a meeting and participate in decision making.
- 35(4) This means that if you haven't signed the proxy notice (e.g. because you did it by email) then you must provide a note to confirm that your proxy is acting on your behalf.
- 36 This says that the co-op can receive or send messages (e.g. notice of general meeting) and documents using electronic means – if this article isn't in here then each individual member would have to explicitly agree to receive messages and documents by email etc. Nevertheless it is still a good idea to get agreement from each member.

(c) adjustment of the rights of the contributories among themselves.

(a) to such person or committee;

(2) The directors may make rules of procedure for all or any committees, which prevail over rules derived from the articles if they are not consistent with them.

Directors' decisions

Directors to take decisions by consensus

10. (1) Any decision of the directors must be taken by consensus.

(2) Such a decision may take the form of a resolution in writing, copies of which have been signed by each eligible director or to which each eligible director has otherwise indicated agreement in writing.

(3) Exact procedures for reaching consensus shall be decided from time to time by the directors or by a decision of the co-operative in general meeting.

(4) When deciding procedures for reaching consensus the directors may include an option of taking a vote in case of directors' inability to reach any decision by consensus.

(5) This article is entrenched in accordance with section 22 of the Act and any alteration to the article requires the approval of 100% of the members.

Calling a directors' meeting

11. (1) Any director may call a directors' meeting by giving notice of the meeting to the directors.

(2) Notice of any directors' meeting must indicate:

(a) its proposed date and time;

(b) where it is to take place; and

(c) if it is anticipated that directors participating in the meeting will not be in the same place, how it is proposed that they should communicate with each other during the meeting.

(3) Notice of a directors' meeting must be given to each director, but need not be in writing.

(4) Notice of a directors' meeting need not be given to directors who waive their entitlement to notice of that meeting, by giving notice to that effect to the co-operative not more than 7 days after the date on which the meeting is held. Where such notice is given after the meeting has been held, that does not affect the validity of the meeting, or of any business conducted at it.

Participation in directors' meetings

12. (1) Subject to the articles, directors participate in a directors' meeting, or part of a directors' meeting, when:

- (a) the meeting has been called and takes place in accordance with the articles, and
 - (b) they can each communicate to the others any information or opinions they have on any particular item of the business of the meeting.
- (2) In determining whether directors are participating in a directors' meeting, it is irrelevant where any director is or how they communicate with each other.
- (3) If all the directors participating in a meeting are not in the same place, they may decide that the meeting is to be treated as taking place wherever any of them is.

Quorum for directors' meetings

13. (1) At a directors' meeting, unless a quorum is participating, no proposal is to be decided on, except a proposal to call another meeting.
- (2) The quorum for directors' meetings may be fixed from time to time by a decision of the co-operative in general meeting, but it must never be less than 50% of the directors or two, whichever is greater.
- (3) If the total number of directors for the time being is less than the two, the directors must not take any decision other than a decision to call a general meeting so as to enable the members to appoint further directors.

Facilitation of directors' meetings

14. (1) The directors may appoint a member to facilitate their meetings.
- (2) The person so appointed for the time being is known as the facilitator.
- (3) The directors may terminate the facilitator's appointment at any time.
- (4) If the facilitator is not participating in a directors' meeting within ten minutes of the time at which it was to start, the participating directors may appoint one of themselves to facilitate it.

Conflicts of interest

15. (1) If a proposed decision of the directors is concerned with an actual or proposed transaction or arrangement with the co-operative in which a director is interested, that director is not to be counted as participating in that part of the meeting for quorum or decision making purposes.
- (2) But if paragraph (3) applies, a director who is interested in an actual or proposed transaction or arrangement with the co-operative is to be counted as participating in the decision making process for quorum and decision making purposes.
- (3) This paragraph applies when
- (a) the board decides to disapply the provision of the articles which would otherwise prevent a director from being counted as participating in the decision making process;
 - (b) the director's interest cannot reasonably be regarded as likely to give rise to a conflict of interest; or
 - (c) the director's conflict of interest arises from a permitted cause.
- (4) For the purposes of this article, the following are permitted causes
- (a) a guarantee given, or to be given, by or to a director in respect of an obligation incurred by or on behalf of the co-operative or any of its subsidiaries;
 - (b) subscription, or an agreement to subscribe, for securities of the co-operative or any of its subsidiaries, or to underwrite, sub-underwrite, or guarantee subscription for any such securities; and
 - (c) arrangements pursuant to which benefits are made available to employees and directors or former employees and directors of the co-operative or any of its subsidiaries which do not provide special benefits for directors or former directors.

(5) For the purposes of this article, references to proposed decisions and decision making processes include any directors' meeting or part of a directors' meeting.

(6) If a question arises at a meeting of directors or of a committee of directors as to the right of a director to participate in the meeting (or part of the meeting) for decision making or quorum purposes, the question may, before the conclusion of the meeting, be decided upon by the board.

Directors' discretion to make further rules

16. Subject to the articles, the co-operative in general meeting or the board of directors may make any rule which they think fit about the running of the co-operative.

Methods of appointing directors

17. (1) Only Members of the co-operative who are permitted by law to do so may be appointed to be a director. Directors shall be appointed by decision of a general meeting of members of the co-operative.

(2) Subject to any decision of the co-operative in general meeting, all members of the co-operative shall also be directors. Statement on the Co-operative Identity

Definition

A co-operative is an autonomous association of persons united voluntarily to meet their common economic, social, and cultural needs and aspirations through a jointly-owned and democratically-controlled enterprise.

Values

Co-operatives are based on the values of self-help, self-responsibility, democracy, equality, equity and solidarity. In the tradition of their founders, co-operative members believe in the ethical values of honesty, openness, social responsibility and caring for others.

Principles

The co-operative principles are guidelines by which co-operatives put their values into practice.

1st Principle: Voluntary and Open Membership

Co-operatives are voluntary organisations, open to all persons able to use their services and willing to accept the responsibilities of membership, without gender, social, racial, political or religious discrimination.

2nd Principle: Democratic Member Control

Co-operatives are democratic organisations controlled by their members, who actively participate in setting their policies and making decisions. Men and women serving as elected representatives are accountable to the membership. In primary co-operatives members have equal voting rights (one member, one vote) and co-operatives at other levels are also organised in a democratic manner.

3rd Principle: Member Economic Participation

Members contribute equitably to, and democratically control, the capital of their co-operative. At least part of that capital is usually the common property of the co-operative.

Members usually receive limited compensation, if any, on capital subscribed as a condition of membership. Members allocate surpluses for any or all of the following purposes: developing their co-operative, possibly by setting up reserves, part of which at least would be indivisible; benefiting members in proportion to their transactions with the co-operative; and supporting other activities approved by the membership.

4th Principle: Autonomy and Independence

Co-operatives are autonomous, self-help organisations controlled by their members. If they enter into agreements with other organisations, including governments, or raise capital from external sources, they do so on terms that ensure democratic control by their members and maintain their co-operative autonomy.

5th Principle: Education, Training and Information

Co-operatives provide education and training for their members, elected representatives, managers, and employees so they can contribute effectively to the development of their co-operatives. They inform the general public – particularly young people and opinion leaders – about the nature and benefits of co-operation.

6th Principle: Co-operation among Co-operatives

Co-operatives serve their members most effectively and strengthen the co-operative movement by working together through local, national, regional and international structures.

7th Principle: Concern for Community

Co-operatives work for the sustainable development of their communities through policies approved by their members.

Secondary Rules of _____ Ltd

Notes:

Secondary rules complement your Articles and set out in more detail how your co-op will be run. They are not part of the official Articles and do not get sent to Companies House. They are an internal document and can easily be changed at a co-op meeting, without having to notify Companies House. The sample rules below are the minimum we recommend – they set out in more detail what is meant by consensus decision-making, which is quite important in case there is disagreement within the co-op. You may wish to add more information about the structure of the co-op, who membership is open to, selection and probation processes, employment and allocation of work, volunteers, more on meetings. What exactly and how much you include in your Secondary Rules is entirely up to your co-op. One example of more detailed secondary rules can be found here: www.organiclea.org.uk/about/ethics/co-operative/

To use the sample secondary rules below your co-op should:

- decide whether to have a minimum number of work hours needed to be eligible for membership, and to change that number in rule 2);
- decide on a minimum number of people needed for meetings (quoracy). The model articles already set a minimum, so you only need to include rule 4) and 5) if you decide to have a higher number in the secondary rules;
- read the notes on the Articles of Association above.

General

1) These secondary rules are intended to complement and clarify the Articles of Association of our co-operative. They are agreed by general meeting of the co-operative and may be changed at any time by a general meeting of the co-operative.

Membership

2) Our Articles allow for a condition of membership to be made on a minimum number of hours worked. This prescribed number of hours shall be set at 20 hours per month. (Article 22(1)(b))

Policies and Procedures

3) The co-operative shall have the following policies and procedures:

- Grievance procedure
- Disciplinary procedure
- Equality Policy
- Ethical Policy

Meetings

4) The quorum required for a directors' meeting shall be 3 directors or 50% of the directors, whichever is greater. (Article 13(2))

5) The quorum required for a general meeting shall be 3 members or 50% of the membership, whichever is greater. (Article 28(2))

Consensus

6) This co-op is committed to making decisions which every member can support. Consensus is reached if every member present are in agreement on an issue, or when not in agreement agree not to maintain an objection.

7) In order to use consensus members recognise that:

- They share a common goal for the co-operative.
- They are committed to reaching consensus.

- They will actively work towards building trust between members, and being honest and open with each other.
- Good decisions need to be given enough time, and rushing a decision rarely helps in the long term. As consensus and its underlying values of trust, honesty and openness are not generally practised in wider society it can take time to adjust and learn to do consensus well and efficiently.
- The running of the co-operative and its meetings requires the active participation of members.
- In order to reach consensus we need to be clear about the process we use so that we understand how we are making the decision.

7) We generally use the process outlined below to reach consensus. Although not all decisions need to explicitly use this process any member may demand that the process below be followed explicitly in each of its stages.
